READING COMPREHENSION

Directions:

This section contains five passages, each followed by a number of questions (1- 6).

Read the passages and for each question, choose the one best answer – (A), (B), (C), (D)- based on what is stated in or what can be inferred from the passage. Then, on your answer sheet, tick the letter of the answer you have selected.

TEXT 1:

One of the major processes that takes place in schools, of course, is that students learn. When they graduate from high school, many can use a computer, write essays with three-part theses, and differentiate equations. In addition to learning specific skills, they learn to think critically, to weigh evidence and to develop independent judgment. The extent to which this development takes place is related to both school and home environments. Teachers who are more open to new ideas and less authoritarian produce students who have greater intellectual flexibility and higher achievement test scores. Studies show that teachers are most demanding when they are of the same social class as their students. The greater the difference between their own social class and that of their pupils, the more rigidly they structure their classrooms and the fewer demands they place on their students.

1. It is stated in the passage that teachers who are more open to new ideas -----.

- A) produce more successful students in terms of test scores and intellectual flexibility
- B) often come from a lower social class than their students
- C) are more authoritarian towards students
- D) discourage intellectual flexibility in schools

2. We learn from the reading that when students graduate from high school -----.

- A) they can take the overall responsibility of anything
- B) all of them have a good knowledge of computer usage
- C) many of them have gained specific skills like writing essays and differentiating equations
- D) most of them lack knowledge because of unavailability of ideal learning conditions

3. According to the reading, it is true that -----.

- A) it is not so difficult to constitute ideal learning conditions
- B) with close supervision every student can get high test scores
- C) both the school and home environments greatly influence a student's achievement in school
- D) students learn best in a rigid classroom environment

TEXT 2:

The sheer number of people in a group ^{large} affects the amount of communication. Consider the difference between communication between two friends and communication in a group of five people. When friends talk, there are two people sending and receiving messages. In a group of five, there are five people doing the same thing. Each idea that is expressed must be understood by four others, who may also choose to respond. Consequently, the greater number of people in a group, the fewer contributions an individual may make. Because there are disadvantages to large groups, you might assume that small groups would be the most effective. However, groups can be too small as well as 100 people large. With too few members, a group has limited resources, which eliminates a primary advantage of groups for decision making. Also, members may be unwilling to disagree or criticize each other's ideas. I believe that five to seven members is the ideal size for a small group.

4. We can conclude from the reading that in large groups -----.

- A) there is always a chaos at the end of each discussion
- ☒ B) before a decision is made everyone has to express their ideas individually
- C) everyone is free to express their ideas as much as they want
- D) there is less opportunity for each person to speak

5. According to the passage, small groups -----.
- A) are always more successful than large groups in terms of decision making
 - B) can have some disadvantages as well
 - C) express their criticism more freely than large groups
 - D) are unable to make a decision at the end of discussions
6. The author of the article suggests that -----.
- A) large groups are always superior to small groups
 - B) the ideal size for a small group should be five to seven
 - C) small groups are better as members of them have a chance to criticize each other
 - D) everyone should listen to each other's ideas no matter how large the group is
